

Abstract

The present invention relates to UHT-treated products comprising starch n-alkenyl succinate as texturising agent and said products have low viscosity after UHT-treatment, but full viscosity is developed after a second treatment. Starch n-octenyl succinate is used as well as combined texturising agent and partial egg yolk replacement in UHT-treated products. A process for preparing these products is provided.